Dear Colleague:

This is the 1979-80 edition of the Georgia State University Fact Book. It portrays a modern university bringing together students, faculty, academic programs, financial resources, and physical facilities in a dynamic and changing environment.

The entire University community is grateful for the support which the people of this State, their elected representatives, and the Board of Regents have provided to Georgia State University. It is the goal of the University to encourage and to develop the great human resources in the State by providing enrichment opportunities for learning, living, and personal fulfillment. The University seeks to bring together theory and practice, academic excellence and relevance, and general and professional education while preserving the primacy of the individual always at the heart of its concerns. This publication presents a record of progress towards this goal in which all Georgians can take pride.

In a constantly changing environment there is a continuing need for current, reliable, and objective information about the many aspects of the University. The Fact Book provides a ready source of information to answer frequently asked questions about Georgia State University. Presenting a broad spectrum of information about the past and present, the Fact Book provides assistance for students, faculty, staff, alumni, and friends of the University.

I hope that you will find the Georgia State University Fact Book informative and useful, and I hope that it will enhance your understanding of the University.

Sincerely,

William M. Suttles

PREFACE AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This is the tenth annual issue of the Georgia State University Fact Book. It is dedicated to serving on a timely basis frequent information needs and interests of students, faculty, staff, alumni and the public. The design of the publication attempts to offer brief but relevant information on principal characteristics of Georgia State University. There are obviously many other subjects and facts of special interest to many people which are not included in this publication. If more detailed information is needed on the material presented, the source on each page indicates the office or reference data used. Many of the reports referred to are available in the Pullen Library.

Your favorable reactions to past issues of the Fact Book are sincerely appreciated, and you are encouraged to give us your suggestions for improvement of future issues. Responses to the Fact Book demonstrate its many applications in the shared management, administrative, and planning activities of Georgia State University.

Our appreciation is extended to various offices which assisted us with the development of the information. The cooperation was excellent. We are especially appreciative of the contributions of Mr. Frank Drago, Cartographer of the Department of Geography (map reprints), Mr. Bill Biggers, Educational Media (graphic illustrations), and Mr. Alphonso Rosser, Public Information Office (pictorial illustrations). The printing services of Mr. Rowland Kraps and his staff at the University of Georgia are sincerely appreciated.

The project was conducted as a service to the university. All institutional research staff members of the Office of Institutional Planning made contributions to this publication. Especially noteworthy individuals are Mary Roberts, Ellen Posey, and Charles H. Bryson.

GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY

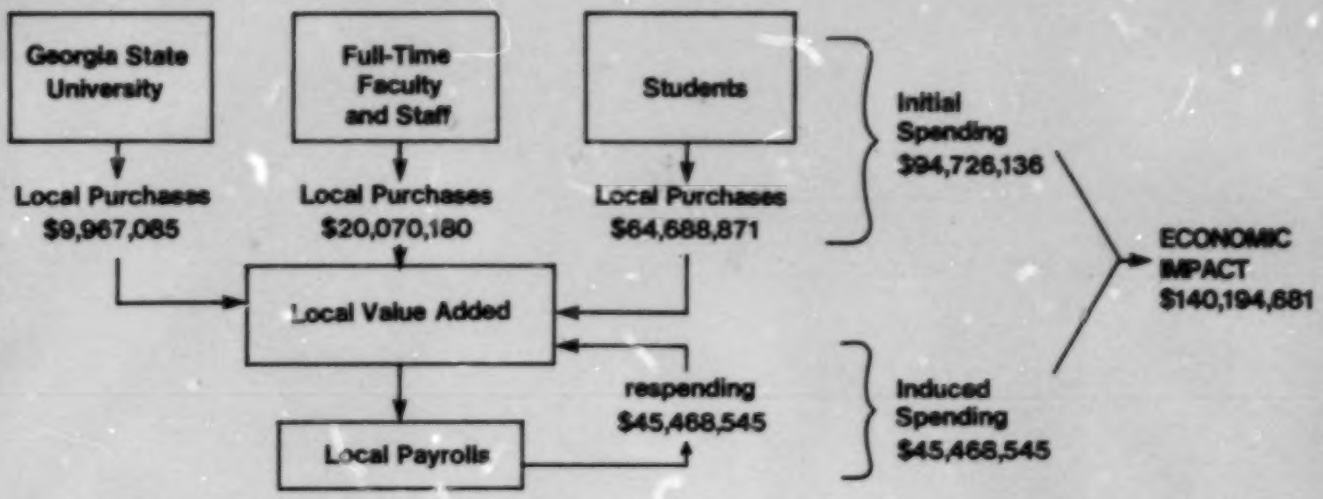
IMPACT ON ATLANTA ECONOMY



- IN THE COURSE OF PURSUING ITS PRIMARY EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL AIMS, GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY PROVIDES THE ATLANTA COMMUNITY WITH A SUBSTANTIAL EXTRA DIVIDEND OF JOBS AND INCOME
- FORTY-SIX PERCENT OF THE STUDENTS LIVE IN THE ATLANTA AREA LARGELY BECAUSE THEY ARE PRESENTLY ENROLLED AT GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY
- THE AVERAGE STUDENT ANNUALLY SPENDS $7,307 IN THE LOCAL ECONOMY
- FACULTY AND STAFF MEMBERS SPEND LOCALLY AN AVERAGE OF $9,530 EACH
- THE DIRECT LOCAL PURCHASES OF THE UNIVERSITY AMOUNTED TO $9,967,085 IN FISCAL 1978
- DIRECT SPENDING FROM THESE THREE SOURCES TOTALED $94,726,136. THIS FIGURE IS CONSERVATIVE SINCE IT OMITS SPENDING BY PART-TIME EMPLOYEES AND MOST PART-TIME STUDENTS
- BUT SINCE EACH DOLLAR OF DIRECT SPENDING TURNS OVER SEVERAL TIMES IN THE 15-COUNTY ATLANTA METROPOLITAN AREA--AN EFFECT KNOWN AS A "MULTIPLIER"--THE TOTAL IMPACT OF GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY WAS CALCULATED AT $140.2 MILLION
- THE UNIVERSITY DIRECTLY PROVIDED 2,106 FULL-TIME JOBS AND 1,522 PART-TIME JOBS IN 1978. UNIVERSITY-RELATED SPENDING GENERATED AN ADDITIONAL 3,326 FULL-TIME POSITIONS IN THE ATLANTA COMMUNITY
- A NOTEWORTHY FEATURE OF THIS SPENDING BY GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY IS THAT IT REMAINS STABLE EVEN THROUGH ECONOMIC RECESSION

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE OF THE UNIVERSITY

Georgia State University endeavors to promote the advancement of knowledge through excellence in teaching, research, and public service. The University sees its role as meeting the need for a broad range of educational opportunities in the largest population center in the State. Its location adds an operational dimension to the education of students by affording opportunities to participate in the vast social, artistic and scientific learning laboratory that characterizes modern society. In a climate of academic freedom, where creativity is encouraged, the University strives to serve individual students, other institutions of higher learning, social institutions and agencies, and society at large. The University thus endeavors to exercise direction and leadership by extending the boundaries of knowledge through research and scholarly activity, and by providing programs which embody excellence.

Georgia State University endeavors to develop in each student a respect for the dignity and worth of the individual; a desire and capacity for critical reasoning; an appreciation and understanding of scholarship and creativity in the arts, humanities, and sciences; the ability to communicate; and a continuing desire for knowledge. By offering undergraduate, graduate, and advanced professional programs as well as expanded credit and non-credit educational opportunities in the continuing learning experience, the University seeks to assist individuals of all ages to discover and realize their own potentialities--to become a learning people rather than just learned people. The institution thereby endeavors to provide initially and on a continuing basis the requisites for competence, personal fulfillment, and responsible leadership in business and the professions, in the sciences, in the creative and performing arts, in government and public service, and in education.

CAPSULE HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

In 1913, the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce, under the direction of distinguished Georgia Tech staff member Wayne S. Kell, opened its doors with an enrollment of 47 students. From these meager beginnings, the school grew to what is now Georgia State University, the second largest institution of higher learning in Georgia.

Under directors John M. Watters in 1918, Fred B. Wenn in 1925, and finally Dr. George M. Sparks in 1928, the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce continued to grow until it became an independent college in the reorganized University System of Georgia in 1933.

The school remained independent for a number of years--through the Great Depression and World War II until 1947, when the Board of Regents determined that the institution's functions could be incorporated into the program of the University of Georgia. It continued to function under the direction of the University of Georgia with the title of the "Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia."

In 1955 it became evident that the institution had a destiny of its own. It was separated from the University of Georgia and renamed the "Georgia State College of Business Administration" with Dr. George Sparks as President.

Two years later Noah Langdale, Jr. took over as President on the retirement of Dr. Sparks. In 1961, the Board of Regents changed the name of the institution to Georgia State College. Under the leadership of President Langdale, new degrees and programs were added.

Finally, in 1969, in recognition of the academic achievements of the institution, and the services provided for both students and the community, the Board of Regents granted the college university status. Georgia State College became Georgia State University.

Georgia State University has continued to be innovative in developing new programs for students, faculty and citizens alike. The expanded, modern city-campus environment of the University today provides a unique setting in which to fulfill its threefold mission of teaching, service and research.

BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY SYSTEM OF GEORGIA

The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia was created in the reorganization of the State government that took place in 1931 under the administration of the late Senator Richard B. Russell, who was at that time Governor. The Act establishing the Board of Regents became effective January 1, 1932. The Board is a public corporation and a constitutional body. It governs, controls, and manages all of the State's public institutions of higher education. The Board receives the appropriation from the State in a lump sum and makes internal allocations. The fifteen members of the Board of Regents are appointed by the Governor on a rotating basis to serve a seven-year term. The current membership of the Board of Regents and the officers and staff are listed below.

* Included special studies students prior to Fall Quarter, 1978.

 Board of Regents' Formula:

Total credit hours divided by 16 2/3 (No distinction made between undergraduate and graduate level).

 Southern Association of Colleges and School's Formula:

1. Undergraduate students taking 12 or more hours or in the case of graduate students whatever the college or university considers as a full-time load (in this case 8 hours) is a full-time student.
2. The total hours carried by the part-time undergraduate students are divided by 12 and the total hours carried by part-time graduate students are divided by 8 to arrive at an equivalent full-time student.
3. The sum of (1) and (2) equals the total equivalent full-time students.

Notes:
1. Entering freshmen include students new to the institution who have no previous college credit, including both developmental studies students and regular students.
2. Earlier editions of Normative Data reported the verbal and mathematics scores of the SAT as total scores. Analysis of previous data revealed that the Total SAT could be used for predicting freshman grades without reducing the predictive efficiency of the test. However, in 1971, the Normative Data editions began reporting separate SAT scores.

GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY
Student Organizations

Georgia State University offers a wide range of services and facilities to promote student interest and development. The University community consists of individuals of various ages, backgrounds, and interests, and the administration, faculty, and students work toward providing organizations and services aimed at these individual interests and needs. The Dean of Students' staff is particularly open to serving individual students who wish to organize groups with many interests including professional, social, cultural, religious, political, recreational, educational, service-oriented, honorary, theatrical, etc. The possibilities of student organizations are limited only to the individual student's needs and interests.

The Student Government Association is the official governing body and the official collective voice of all Georgia State University students. This group is representative of the needs of the University community and encourages participation in both time and ideas. The Student Government Association sponsors many groups on campus, including those involved with academic improvement, legal assistance, student services and welfare, entertainment, films, student activities, external affairs, internal operations, etc.

The student media consist of a campus newspaper, the SIGNAL, which is printed on a regular basis and informs the community of news and events at Georgia State University; an educationally-licensed FM radio station, WRAS, which broadcasts 24 hours daily; the Georgia State University yearbook, the RAMPWAY, recording the school year's student life; and the GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY REVIEW, a publication of Georgia State University literary, artistic, and photographic achievements.

The Interfraternity Council and the Intersorority Council serve as self-governing bodies representative of the campus fraternities and sororities, pooling ideas and coordinating several joint activities during the academic year.

The Intramural Council, an organization of students which formulates the rules, schedules, and policies pertaining to various intramural athletic events, serves the recreational and competitive interests of the student body.

There are over 100 student organizations. The breakdown by category follows:

Educational--10
Social--19
(Fraternities--11, Sororities--8)
Professional--19
Recreational Groups--8
Religious Groups--9
Service and Social--11
Special Interest and Political--39
Cultural--1
Drama--2 (1 through the Department of Speech and Drama)
Student Publications--3
Student Broadcasting--1
Student Government Association
Intramural Council
Honor Societies--14

Information about the groups is available in the student handbook, ON CAMPUS, and from the Office of the Dean of Students.

Alumni

GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Georgia State University Alumni Association is an active, viable organization which was incorporated in 1963 to "promote, aid, encourage, perpetuate, and develop the aims and objectives of Georgia State University." To accomplish this end, the Association sponsors a variety of programs that fall into six major categories: alumni giving, university promotion, student recruitment, student/young alumni relations, personal and professional development, and alumni activities.

Alumni programs and services are developed by a 35-member volunteer Board of Directors. Specific projects and programs are carried out by these Board members with the assistance of other alumni volunteers and the Alumni Office staff. A tabloid newspaper is published six times a year and mailed to all alumni of record to keep them informed of developments at the University, and to provide them with news of other alumni.

The Alumni Association serves the University by (a) providing monies for scholarships and grants for students, (b) recognizing outstanding faculty through distinguished professor awards, (c) giving financial aid to various university programs, (d) representing the university's interests on a local, regional, and statewide basis, (e) recruiting outstanding students for admission, and (f) providing leadership for special programs and activities. The Association, in turn, serves its members through various activities designed for their benefit, education, and enjoyment. Alumni tours, continuing education programs, library privileges, and recreation activities are but a few of the services provided for alumni.

The Association's Career Consultation Service is designed to provide current students with up-to-date information about possible jobs or careers. The program, highly rated by its users, enables a student to choose a counselor among alumni volunteers representing a broad range of occupations. The Alumni Office maintains current lists of participating alumni, facilitates the visits, and provides an ongoing evaluation of the results of these contacts.

For prospective students and their parents, the Alumni Student Recruitment Network functions as an energetic and enthusiastic corps of volunteers who serve as personal links to the university's Admissions Office. The network is providing support in three areas: Focusing on Accepted Students, Focusing on Georgia Scholars, and Focusing on High School and Junior College Counselors. In each program alumni are matched by zip code with prospects from their own communities.

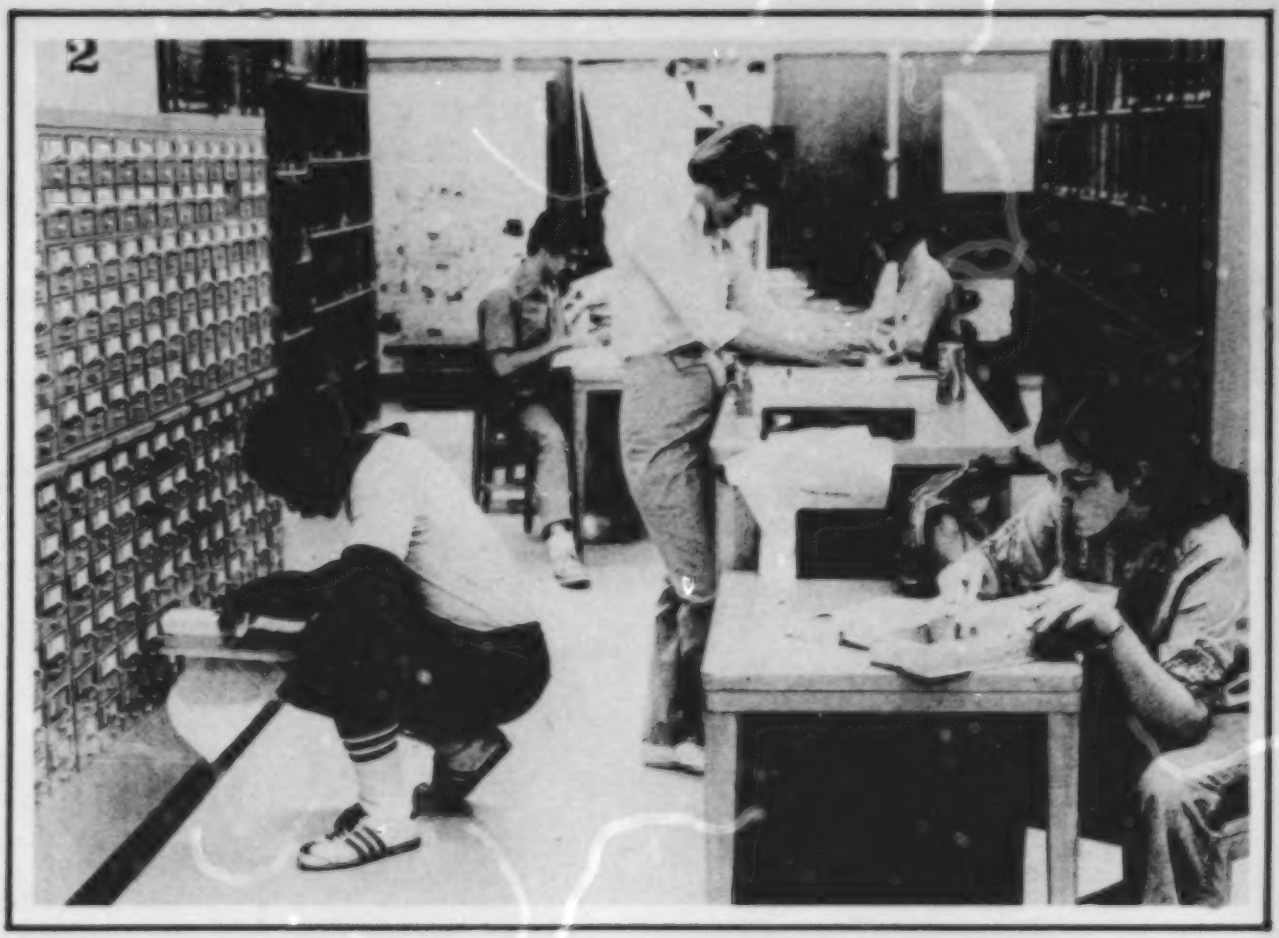
Library



GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY
Library

The William Russell Pullen Library is a six-story structure located near the geographic center of the campus. Construction of the present Library building was completed in 1969. The ground level houses parking facilities while the upper five levels provide a shelf capacity of 800,000 volumes and a seating capacity of 2,000. There is an open stack arrangement with color-coded graphics posted at strategic points to aid the patron in locating the materials needed.

The staff of the Library is composed of 90 full-time and 65 part-time employees. Approximately 30 percent of the full-time staff are professional librarians holding faculty rank with appropriate graduate degrees in Library Science from accredited library schools.

Special library facilities include: rare book room, listening room, microform reading room, graduate and faculty lounges, graduate lockers, eight student conference rooms, and twelve dissertation study rooms.

The library has automated book order and circulation systems and holds membership in the Southeastern Library Network which provides an on-line automated cataloging service. Library statistics are provided below.

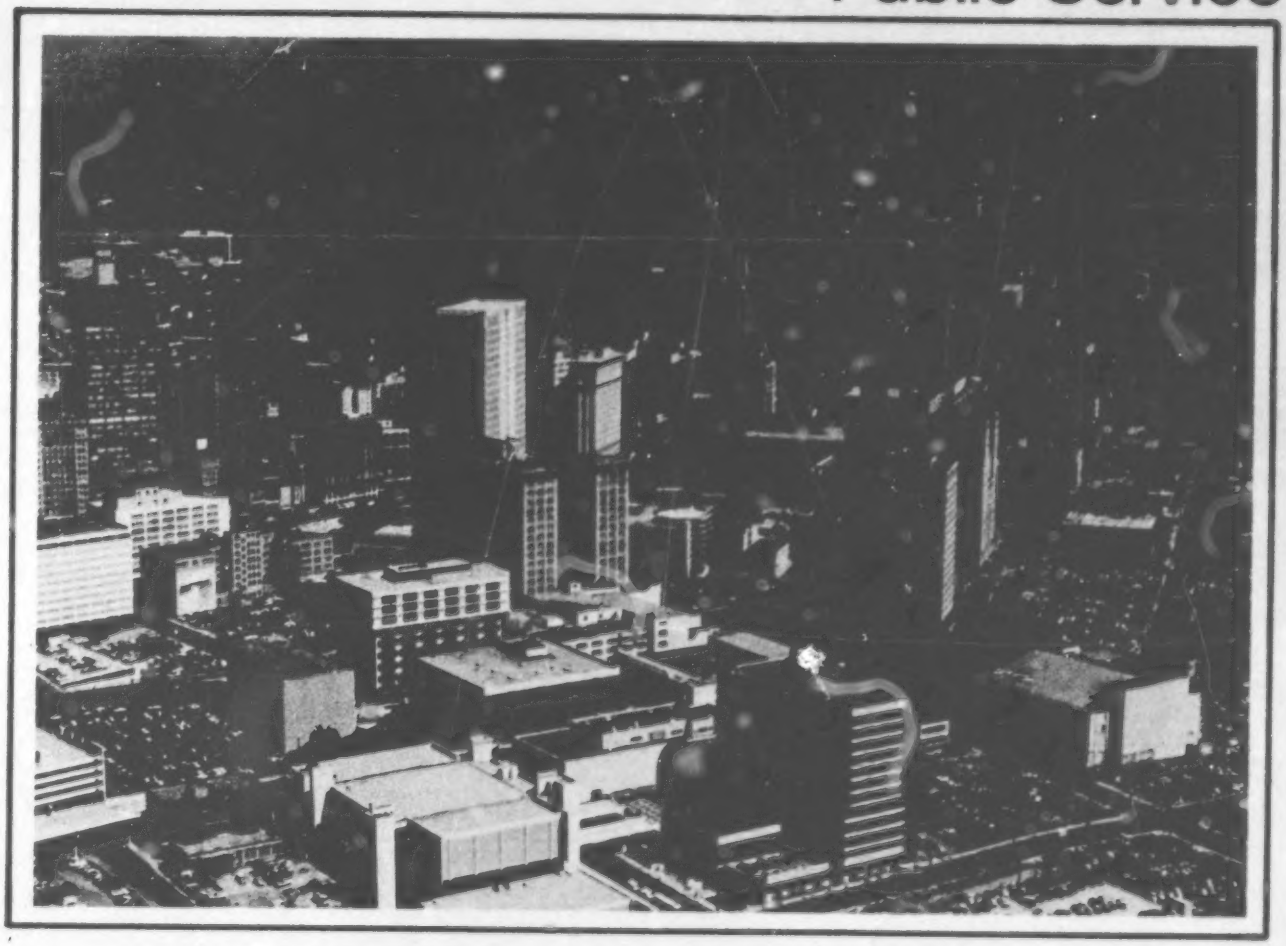
Urban Life Center Concept & Public Service



GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY

THE URBAN LIFE CENTER

The Urban Life Center was established in 1968 as an essential element in the urban university concept fostered at Georgia State University. The overall purpose of the Center is to marshal academic, governmental, professional, and public resources, bringing them to bear on the problems of our urban society. Drawing upon these resources, the Center creates and conducts courses of instruction, action-oriented research, and public service programs coping with specific urban problems and contributing to the betterment of the urban environment. Vital contributions to Urban Life Center programs are made by faculty members of all the colleges composing Georgia State University: Allied Health Sciences, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, General Studies, and the degree/credit arm of the Center, the College of Urban Life.

Service components of the Center include the following:

The Division of Public Service develops, coordinates, and conducts non-credit information and training seminars, workshops, conferences, and short courses designed to assist governmental-administrative-service agencies and community groups in dealing with urban problems and to aid them in planning. These public service programs have the underlying objective of bringing the public, the government, and the academic community together in a spirit of cooperation and open communication.

The Atlanta Urban Corps develops and administers an internship program that provides service-learning experiences for college students. In this program, young men and women from colleges across the nation participate directly in the day-by-day operation of public agencies in the Atlanta area. While doing work useful to the administrative and service agencies--and getting paid for this work--the students acquire first-hand knowledge of how these agencies actually function. This Urban Corps is one of the largest in the nation, providing internships for students from 90 colleges and universities.

The Urban Life Associates is the citizens' advisory board to the Urban Life Center. It serves as a direct channel for community input into the programs and policies of the Center. A diverse group of more than 200 citizens from neighborhoods throughout metropolitan Atlanta, the Associates initiate, participate in, coordinate, and make recommendations concerning all activities of the Urban Life Center.

The Inter-University Urban Cooperative is responsible for communication and coordination between the Urban Life Center and Georgia's many colleges and universities, public and private, concerning joint projects in urban studies, urban research, and community service.

COMPUTER CENTER

The Georgia State University Computer Center, which is under the administration of the Vice President for Academic Services, was founded in 1959 and today occupies the ground floor and part of the third floor of the Business Administration Building. Two UNIVAC 90/80's, an INTERDATA 8/32, an INTERDATA 3220 and an IBM 1800 are available to users in the university community--faculty, staff, and students. The two 90/80's operate essentially as independent systems, but with an INTERDATA 8/32 as a "front end" processor for both systems, to handle the communication access for terminals, channeling jobs to the proper computer. The IBM 1800, housed in Kell Hall, is used to moritor and control experiments in psychological research.

The computers in the Center are used for administrative work of the University, for faculty and student research, and extensively for instructional purposes. Users are able to access the computing facilities of the two UNIVAC 90/80's through 245 communication lines. There are 38 terminals in Room 109 Business Administration Building and 6 in Room 229A General Classroom Building which are primarily, but not exclusively, for students. Terminals are also located in various administrative and faculty offices on campus. During a typical quarter, over 3500 students make use of the computer in their classwork, developing their problem-solving skills either by writing their own programs or by making use of the large library of programs available on the Systems. A Versatec plotter, a CALCOMP plotter, and a Tektronix terminal which produces on-line graphic display of data, add yet another dimension to the Center's data processing capabilities.

Computer Center personnel present instructional workshops in the classroom, additional training is provided through computer-assisted instruction, and consultants are available to assist users on an individual basis. Short courses on computer-oriented topics are offered through the Division of Public Service in an effort to maximize use of the facilities. Communication with the user is further implemented through a bi-monthly newsletter and through documentation in a six-section User's Guide.

COUNSELING CENTER

The services of the Counseling Center reflect the concern of the University for intellectual, personal, and social needs of all students. Beyond providing remedial services for students in crisis, the program is regularly involved in preventive and developmental outreach services. These services are planned either to prepare students so they can more effectively use the University environment or to assist the University community to change so that the developmental experiences that a student needs are more readily available.

The Counseling Center is accredited by the International Association of Counseling Centers. A research monograph has been published to report studies measuring effectiveness of counseling services.

The functions of the Counseling Center are divided into five operational areas:

Counseling. A representative cross-section of the student body seeks individual counseling for vocational, educational and emotional problems. Personal growth, anxiety reduction, communication skills, vocational development, grade-watching, marriage and family are titles descriptive of ongoing counseling services.

Outreach. Workshops for faculty and staff are designed to help them in their work with students. Skill training groups are offered both to students at the University and to the Atlanta community at large. Workshops such as couples communication programs, "Assertive Training," "Your Next Step," "Conflict Resolution," and "Study Skills Circus" have become a continuing effort.

Testing and Research. During 1978-79, 28,681 tests were administered to 19,754 individuals encompassing the Institutional Testing Program for admission, placement, and evaluation; individual counseling; and national testing activities for the Psychological Corporation and Educational Testing Service. The Testing Division provided an extensive test scoring and analysis service, faculty evaluation service, research/attitude scale summary service, and various specialized automated scoring programs for the University community. During 1978-79, 259,394 test forms were processed.

Learning Resources Laboratory. Programs meet needs of students who have deficiencies in fundamental learning skills and help advanced students become more effective in their study technique. Faculty consultations assist in identifying and alleviating students' learning difficulties.

Internship and Practicum. Doctoral students in psychology and counseling fulfill their clinical internship requirements under supervision. Advanced doctoral practicum experiences are offered to selected Georgia State University students. Para-professionals are given supervised experience in the Center on an individual basis.
